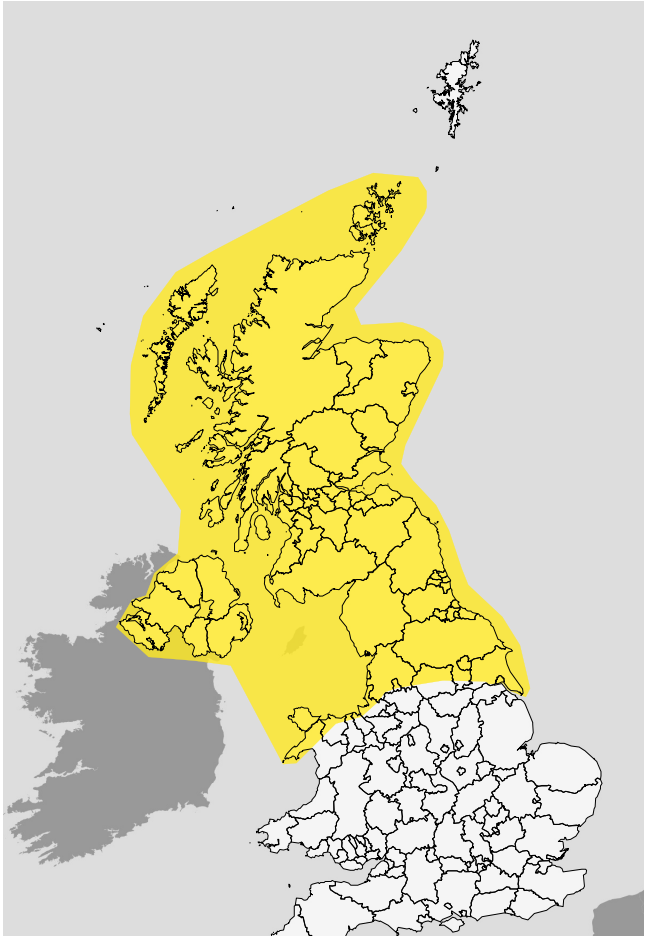
18:00 Thu 17 Feb 2022



Storm Dudley will bring period of very strong winds could cause some disruption later Wednesday and during Thursday

What to expect

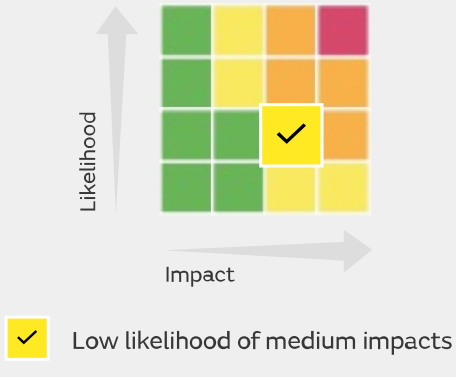
- Road, rail, air and ferry services may be affected, with longer journey times and cancellations possible, as well as some roads and bridges may close
- Fallen trees and some damage to buildings, such as tiles blown from roofs, could happen
- Power cuts may occur, with the potential to affect other services, such as mobile phone coverage
- There is a chance of injuries and danger to life from flying debris, as well as large waves and beach material being thrown onto sea fronts, coastal roads and properties

Further details

Very strong westerly winds are expected to develop across western Scotland and Northern Ireland later Wednesday and extend south-eastward to most of Scotland and northern England and north Wales overnight into Thursday.

There is still some uncertainty in the timing and location of the strongest winds but there is the potential for inland wind gusts of 60-70 mph in places. Gusts of 80-90 mph are possible around exposed coasts and hills of Scotland.

Winds are expected to ease, initially across western areas, through Thursday afternoon and evening.



Low likelihood of medium impacts
